

Siemens Mobility presents Supplier Award 2020

- Award honors winners in five categories
- Collaboration with focus on “glocal” value creation, sustainability, and supply chain resilience
- Siemens Mobility’s supplier network helps generate more than 50 percent of revenue

Siemens Mobility announced today the winners of the company’s Supplier Award for 2020. The award honors suppliers who made significant contributions to Siemens Mobility’s success in fiscal 2020 with their outstanding performance. The award was presented in five categories. Trispel GmbH in Germany took top honors in the category “Technology & Innovation.” The category “Logistics Performance” was won by the Spanish firm Industrial de Transformados. India’s Apar Industries was picked best supplier in the category “Competitiveness.” The winner in the category “Quality” was Germany’s ml&s GmbH & Co. KG, and the special “Moving beyond” award went to Lucchini RS in Italy. Over 400 suppliers were invited to the virtual award ceremony. The awards were presented virtually by Karl Blaim, Chief Financial Officer and member of the Siemens Mobility Managing Board, together with Rainer Straub, the company’s Chief Procurement Officer.

“Our suppliers are a core element of our ecosystem. They support us in generating more than 50 percent of our revenue, secure our ability to maintain a sustainable and reliable supply chain, and enable our “glocal” value creation. To remain successful even in times of crisis, you need first-class suppliers who are innovative and competitive, who reliably deliver the highest quality, and who reinforce the sustainability of the entire value chain,” said Karl Blaim, CFO and member of the Siemens Mobility Managing Board.

Siemens Mobility has presented the Supplier Award for a number of years. The award recognizes outstanding performance, aims to inspire and motivate suppliers, and encourages the sharing of best practices. This year’s winners have been part of the Siemens Mobility supplier network for many years.
