- Capitalize on the flexibility Learning Credits provides you and your team to obtain the most effective training

- Align the investment in your employees' knowledge with your software investment

Summary

Employees must possess the necessary competencies to support and meet your company's objectives in today's rapidly changing business environment. Siemens Xcelerator Academy will make your employees more knowledgeable and provide them with the skills they need, when they need them. Learning credits provide the flexibility to obtain the most effective training to enable your employees to best support your business operations. Establishing a learning credits account upon software purchase and license renewal prepares you and your team to have a budget in place for training needs throughout the year.

Business values

Like any organization that wants to leverage available resources to optimize business success, your company embraces the value of Siemens' digital twin. Siemens' solutions provide you with the design, analysis, and manufacturing management tools that modern businesses use to design and build tomorrow's products, today.

Software purchases are major business investments. To ensure that your business operations maximize return on investment (ROI), your company's employees must gain and retain essential knowledge and skills to fully utilize the features that make these tools so powerful.

With so many roles and responsibilities, it can be challenging to determine training needs for employees. It's even more challenging when each training engagement must be processed individually. Siemens Xcelerator Academy Learning Credits solve this by providing a pool of credits that employees can use for learning throughout the year, anytime they are needed. This flexibility greatly simplifies the training engagements and allows your employees to focus on developing needed knowledge and skills.

Purchase Siemens Xcelerator Academy Learning Credits in any amount in your local currency and redeem for Live In-Person Training at a Siemens site or yours, Live Online Training, or Learning Memberships.

Contact your Siemens sales representative or services engagement manager to request Siemens Learning Services Credits now or at the time of software purchases and renewals.
