Jr. Anglers Day

By Diane Emcott

Deerfield Beach's International Fishing Pier was abuzz with excitement Saturday morning, Sept. 28, as 300 young fishermen and their families cast lines off the side of the pier. The kids were ages 5 to 13 years old.

Arthur, 6, reeled in a dancing, yellow striped Porkfish. The experienced young Angler also caught three Mangrove Snapper — one of which was a prize 13-in. "keeper." (Snapper have to measure 12 in., or they are thrown back into the ocean.)

"He knows very well what he's doing," observed an adult fisherman standing nearby.

"We're here every Saturday and Sunday," answered Arthur's father with a smile.

Kids participating in the City of Deerfield Beach's 4th Annual Jr. Anglers Day received an official Jr. Angler's T-shirt and embroidered cap, a blue

Lowe's bucket filled with stickers, and a free fishing rod and reel — which registered, young anglers got to take home! The event helps foster the beginnings of a lifelong love of fishing.

There were also event tents set up along the pier with Steelpan drums playing and face painting.

New Parks & Recreation Director Preston Pooser was on-scene, as was Assistant Director Cassi Waren, Recreation Superintendent Elizabeth Ricci, Manager II Steve Collazo.

Asked whether he'd ever conducted a fishing event before, Pooser said that when he was in Orange Beach, AL they did a type of fishing tournament every summer.

"It was done on the Back Bay, though, not on a pier," he said.

"This is my first Jr. Anglers Day in Deerfield Beach. It's a great event. Staff has done an awesome job. I'd also like to thank Mayor Ganz and the commissioners for supporting us in what we do," added Pooser.

Manager I Cory Cody and LaKeicha Reiford from the Fishing Pier were registering kids with releases for parents to sign.

Fishing gear was provided by the City of Deerfield Beach and Skip Dana, who provided the bait, hooks, and sinkers for all the Jr. Anglers to use throughout the day, said Cody.

Out at the end of the pier, Mayor Bill Ganz was enjoying a peaceful fishing day.

Deerfield collaborates with Siemens to reduce environmental footprint

The City of Deerfield Beach and Siemens officially announced the start of a city-wide energy efficiency project to reduce the city's environmental footprint on Sept. 25 and released this statement about the collaboration:

Last month, the commission of Deerfield Beach approved a 17-year contract with Siemens for energy performance services. Valued at more than $9.2 million, the infrastructure improvement project will allow the city to reduce energy consumption in more than 20 of its facilities and to increase the use of alternative energy sources. Energy and operational savings are approximated to be $15 million by the end of the 17-year project.

"There is no better way to prepare our city for the future, and the City of Deerfield Beach is proud to partner with an innovation giant like Siemens to bring our city into the 21st Century. Not only will we see cost savings for our taxpayers, but we will also be one step closer to becoming the kind of sustainable city that others can point to as an example of excellence," said Deerfield Beach Mayor Bill Ganz.

To help the city meet its energy-efficiency goals, Siemens is providing smart infrastructure solutions in conjunction with cloud-based digital technologies.

Smart building solutions driven by digitalization

In addition to replacing more than 40 aging HVAC systems and renewing lighting in over 20 facilities, Siemens will install its integrated building management system Desigo CC.

The Desigo system will use sensors and analytics to collect data from each facility to remotely monitor and operate building applications, such as air-conditioning, lighting systems, energy usage and other major building systems. By displaying all vital information of the facilities at a glance, the city will be able to optimize its power and energy usage. In conjunction with Siemens' Navigator, a cloud-based building data analytics platform, the company is adding a layer of intelligence by evaluating the collected data for further optimization.

"This is a unique project in that we will digitally connect, monitor and manage essential building disciplines in more than 20 buildings through one digital central system — as opposed to each building having its own such system," said Scott Brady, Zone vice president at Siemens Smart Infrastructure USA. "We are proud to work side by side with Deerfield Beach to help shape its sustainable future by leveraging the potential of our digital portfolio."

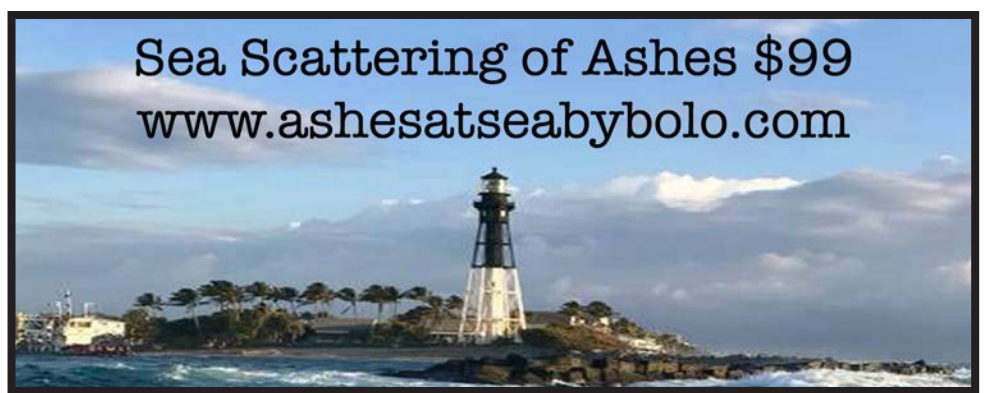

Buildings account for nearly 40 percent of energy consumption globally and 10 percent of carbon dioxide emissions. Smart building solutions are a key contributor to increase energy efficiency and sustainability in these critical pieces of infrastructure.

Increasing the use of alternative, renewable energy sources

To increase the use of alternative energy sources, Siemens will also build a Compressed Natural Gas (CNG) fueling station for the city's solid waste collection vehicles which will reduce operating costs, lower carbon emissions, and boost the city's fleet resiliency.

Markee gets a reboot as 'A Ridenour Studio'

By Diane Emeott

New owners of Markee, Keith Ridenour and Derek Assaf, recently back from building a new facility in Tennessee, acquired Markee Music from Mark Begelman in May.

Guitarist, songwriter and producer Keith and bass player and engineer Derek Assaf have been involved at Markee since its construction in 2010.

Ridenour got interested in playing guitar when he and his drummer brother Randy were kids watching a band rehearse in their living room.

"We would watch them rehearse, absorbing every fiber of the music and wanting to emulate them — and gravitated to playing. One year for Christmas, we got used drums and a used guitar! Our dad used to run dances at the old Chamber Building for the Deerfield Beach Jaycees. He used to run them at the Deerfield fishing pier as well."

Ridenour's father Ray also wrote poetry — inspiring Keith's later songwriting ability.

Keith and Randy went to Deerfield Beach High School and played all the dances, including Homecoming, Sadie Hawkins ... and all over Broward County, Miami-Dade County and West Palm Beach.

"We were in a band called Black Watch," said Keith. "I was able to record my first record as a teenager, at age 17, at Mike Pinera's studio in Miami."

(Other bands Ridenour has played with include Harvest, a Southern Rock band; Uproar, a Pop Rock band; Razor Red, a Pop Metal all original band, and, most recently, Black Water River, a Doobie Brother's Tribute Band.)

Markee owner Keith Ridenour today with his guitars.

In 1993, Keith and a silent partner built Ridenour Studio in Oakland Park "where everyone from Ricky Martin and Aerosmith to Johnny Depp, Foreigner and Steve Winwood would play."

Keith sold that Ridenour Studio in 2003 to move to Nashville where, for the next eight years, he continued songwriting and producing.

As CD sales became less prevalent in 2009 and 2010 (with songs available online), Keith decided to come back to South Florida to open Markee studio with former President and CEO of Office Depot Mark Begelman — who started Mars Music in Ft. Lauderdale in 1996 and later sold it.

At the end of 2017, Keith and Derek went back to Nashville. In 2018, they built 'A Ridenour Studio' in Murfreesboro, TN, a suburb two miles from Nashville. It caters to music students from nearby Middle Tennessee State University (MDSU), as well as the prestigious local talent pool of legendary Nashville, also known as "Music City."

In May 2019, Keith and Derek returned to Deerfield to buy Markee from Begelman.

A Safe Ride For All

By Rachel Galvin

On Saturday, Sept. 21, the Broward Sheriff's Office (BSO), in partnership with the Pompano Beach Fire Rescue, the Broward Safe Kids Coalition, Broward Sheriff Fire Rescue and others held a special event to educate families about various aspects involving safety while in a vehicle. This event corresponded with National Seat Check Saturday. So, they were also checking parent's cars to make sure they had installed car seats safely, and even providing some car seats too. BSO deputies, firefighters and other technicians were learning hands-on so they would be able to install them in the future. They take a 32 hour class, according to Courtney Palmer, the Fire Rescue Public Education Manager, and are trained in all types of vehicles.

Elizabeth Joy Fuller with her daughter Tynasha enjoyed the event and learned quite a bit.

"I learned about how the car seat has to be secured. I can't use the seat belt [with my type of car]... I have to use the lower anchors under the base to make it secure," said Elizabeth Joy.

Evidently, each installation is different. Some can utilize a seat belt to secure them, and some cannot. It can be very complicated.

"Figuring out how to install the car seats is very difficult. They made it easy for me. I hope they do the event next year," said Dana Smith, who added, "Everyone was very nice and very friendly. I truly enjoyed myself."

In addition, the firefighters were handing out information and educating people about distracted and drunk driving, and giving out items like plastic firefighter helmets and stuffed Sparky the Fire Dog mascots.

In addition, parents could get into an SUV and have their child walk backwards so the parents could understand how difficult it is to see children behind a vehicle. These days, most SUVs have backup cameras but being careful while backing up is still important.

They also used a thermometer to demonstrate how hot it can get inside a vehicle and how quickly.

There also were burgers and hot dogs on the grill and drinks available.

Lou Bachrodt Chevrolet was happy to host the event.

"We care about safety and our customers and kids, said Lou Bachrodt Chevrolet General Manager Howard Bodner.

Safe Kids Broward County is led by Joe DiMaggio Children's Hospital and they have plenty of information on their website about safety.

They also have other car seat events listed. Parents can also call them to arrange for a car seat installation for free. Find information at www.safekids.org.

Baby Tynasha is happy to get a Sparky the Safety Dog.

Installing car seats is not so easy.

Courtney Palmer and her daughter Kaitlyn handed out information about safety and goodies for the kids.

It takes a team effort — Safe Broward Kids, Citizens Observer Patrol, Broward Sheriff's Office, Fire Rescue & more came together to make a great event.

Double homicide in Deerfield

Broward Sheriff's Office (BSO) homicide detectives are releasing the names of the victims of a double homicide that occurred last Wednesday in Deerfield Beach.

At approximately 9:40 a.m. on Sept. 25, employees from a doctor's office went to the home, located in the 400 block of NE 39 Street, to check on their co-worker, Jessica Aponte, who did not show up for work Wednesday.

They looked into the house through an open door, saw one of the victims and then called 911.

BSO deputies and fire rescue personnel responded to the scene and confirmed that Aponte, 41, and 24-year-old Luis Alberto Lopez Sanchez were deceased.

Detectives said Aponte lived at the home alone.

The investigation into the murders continues. Anyone with information regarding this case is asked to contact BSO Homicide Det. John Curcio at 954-321-4212 or call Broward Crime Stoppers, anonymously, at 954-493-TIPS (8477) or online at www.browardcrimestoppers.org.

Pedestrian struck twice in fatal hit-and-run

Detectives search for driver

Broward Sheriff's Office (BSO) traffic homicide detectives are investigating the death of a man who was struck by two vehicles early Wednesday morning, Sept. 25 in Pompano Beach.

The incident occurred at approximately 5:35 a.m. in the westbound lanes of the 1100 block of East Copans Road. A Honda Civic was heading westbound in the center lane approaching the 1100 block when the driver attempted to swerve into the left lane to avoid striking a pedestrian who was crossing Copans Road. The passenger side of the Honda struck the man, causing him to fall and come to rest across the center lane. The driver of the Honda failed to remain on scene and fled westbound.

Another westbound vehicle, a Toyota Camry, was unable to come to a stop in time and struck the victim as he lay prone on the roadway. The driver remained on scene and cooperated with the investigation.

Investigators determined the victim was not in a designated pedestrian crosswalk when he attempted to cross the road. Pompano Beach Fire Rescue pronounced the man deceased on scene.

Investigators are searching for a metallic gray, 2014 or 2015-model, 4-door Honda Civic. Detectives say the vehicle is missing the passenger's side mirror and possibly sustained damage to the passenger's side front door and fender.

Anyone with information on this case is asked to contact THI Detective Michael Wiley at 954-321-4841 or call Broward Crime Stoppers, anonymously, at 954-493-TIPS (8477) or online at www.browardcrimestoppers.org. A reward up to $3,000 is available for information that leads to an arrest.

Remember, if you see anything suspicious call 911 immediately.

The Big Sit

The Big Sit is a bird watching event held each year in October. This year, it will be happening the weekend of Oct. 12 and 13. The rules are very simple. You draw a circle 17 ft. in diameter, sit inside the circle and count all the birds you can see in a 24-hour period.

OK, it's a little more complicated than that, but not much. You don't have to stay inside the circle for a whole day, you can do it in shifts, sort of like a relay race. Spend an hour or the entire day. If you see a bird but cannot identify it from the circle, you can leave the circle to get a closer look. You just can't count any other birds you see while outside the circle. Do you have to do it alone? Heck no! You can make a party out of it. Bring as many people as you want as long as they fit inside the circle. Do you have to stay there when it's dark?

Nope. I won't tell on you. And you are not going to see many birds at night anyway. Do you have to be some bird brain expert? Double nope, but bird brain experts are still invited.

We want to do a Big Sit bird count in the Arboretum and we invite you to join us. First, we have to register with the Big Sit people. Then, we have to sign up everybody who wants to join the fun. We have to figure out which 24-hour period out of the weekend works best for everybody, organize a tent and chairs, and some stuff to eat and drink. Then, we have to pick the likeliest spot to see birds and draw our circle there.

If you want to join our merry band of bird watchers, e-mail jerry@treezoo.com.

Hillsboro Beach's Second Budget Meeting

By Carol Porter

The Town of Hillsboro Beach held its second and final budget meeting on Monday, Sept. 23 with Commission Vice Mayor Irene Kirdahy, who ran the meeting in Mayor Deb Tarrant's absence.

Finance Director Stephen Bloom discussed some changes that had taken place since the last commission meeting and noted that some funding for the FPL Underground Project was added to the Capital Improvement Program, otherwise known as CIP, and that amount also would reduce the funding in contingency with the difference being covered with reserves. Otherwise, he assured commissioners there were few changes from the last meeting to the meeting that night.

He recommended that the Town Commission maintain a 3.5 Millage rate, with the rollback rate of 3.4381, and the 3.5 Millage rate would be 1.8 percent higher than the rollback rate. Commissioners unanimously voted to approve the final Millage rate of 3.5 Mills. After that approval, the Town Commission also voted unanimously to approve the 2019-2020 Final Budget.

At the end of the brief meeting, commissioners discussed the subject of the Town shuttle, an item that had come before the commission numerous times at other meetings. The Town manager noted that the shuttle had some flag stops but, for some reason, those types of stops were not acceptable to the Federal government. Serda said that the signage and other details for the stops the shuttle made would have to be evaluated. He said the Town attorney had conversations with the county attorney about other ways to identify the stops. He added there would be more discussions between all the parties involved so they could figure out together how to identify the stops so that people could use the shuttle.

Commissioners had discussion about who used the shuttle and concurred that the shuttle was a necessity for older and less able residents who had issues getting around. Serda also noted that the county was looking at a pilot project and might consider the town for a micro transit hub.

Commissioners said it might be an interesting idea but that some older residents, especially women, were not comfortable getting into a vehicle with a car driven by a man. Commissioners told Serda to update them on the issue at the next meeting.

DJ Doody also talked with commissioners about wanting to conduct a shade session after the Tuesday, Oct. 1 meeting, and that session would be related to the Town's litigation with the City of Deerfield Beach.

Ukraine: A political rerun

Back when reruns were a staple of summer programming, television networks aired repeats of their programs, giving viewers another opportunity to see what they had already seen. Democratic politicians are now conducting their own version of reruns.

The same bunch who brought us the failed Russian “collusion” story, the slinging of Justice Brett Kavanaugh, and charges that President Trump is a racist (which also failed, given the spectacular increase in minority employment), are now rerunning the same show with different characters.

According to a still anonymous “whistleblower,” who wrote a multi-page “complaint” about a phone call between President Trump and Ukraine President Volodymyr Zelensky that he or she heard about secondhand from another unnamed person, President Trump held back military aide to Ukraine until “dirt” on Joe Biden and his son Hunter could be provided.

Hunter Biden served on the board of Burisma, a Ukrainian gas company, which paid him $3.1 million over a 16-month period. This when his father was vice president of the United States and, according to Bloomberg, pursuing “... an anti-corruption policy in Ukraine ... that included a call for the resignation of the country’s top prosecutor who had previously investigated Burisma.”

Ukraine’s prosecutor general has since come out and said that there is no evidence of wrongdoing by U.S. Democratic presidential candidate Joe Biden or his son, but something doesn’t pass the smell test.

The New York Times reports the whistleblower is a CIA agent who was on loan to the White House. I have known several CIA agents and two directors of the CIA—George H.W. Bush and Porter Goss — and none were known for the kind of prose contained in the complaint. The document appears to have been written by a team of lawyers with a political objective, namely impeachment of the president.

This is a view shared by Fred Fleitz, president of the Center for Security Policy, a conservative, Washington, D.C.-based think tank. Fleitz is also a former deputy assistant to President Trump and to the chief of staff of the National Security Council (NSC).

Writing in The New York Post, Fleitz says: “I am very familiar with transcripts of presidential phone calls since I edited and processed dozens of them when I worked for the NSC. I also know a lot about intelligence whistleblowers from my time with the CIA.

“My suspicions grew ... when I saw the declassified whistleblower complaint. It appears to be written by a law professor and includes legal references and detailed footnotes. It also has an unusual legalistic reference on how this complaint should be classified. From my experience, such an extremely polished whistleblowing complaint is unheard of. This document looks as if this leaker had outside help, possibly from congressional members or staff.”

When it comes to an impeachable offense, there is none there.

Like other attempts to undo the results of the 2016 election, this one should also fail if Republicans stick together, as Democrats did during the impeachment of Bill Clinton. Rep. Al Green (D-Texas) revealed his party’s true motives when he said that if Trump isn’t impeached he will be re-elected.

There are deeper issues for 2020. They include capitalism vs. socialism; higher unemployment vs. lower; judges who revere and obey the Constitution vs. judges who wish they had written it and know what the Founders intended better than the Founders; government healthcare vs. reforms in the current system to make it better; greater dependence on government vs. an expansion of individual liberty; rewarding initiative and success vs. penalizing the successful with higher taxes and more regulations.

Don’t expect President Trump to start quoting this line from the Ukraine national anthem, but it could prove prophetic if Democrats fail in their latest cynical attempt to impeach him: “Like the dew before the sun enemies will fade. We will further rule and prosper in our promised land.”

Everything’s Coming Up Rosen

By Emily Rosen
ERosen424@aol.com
www.emilyrosen424.com

For better or for worse

I met my late husband on a blind date in 1952, the year Adlai Stevenson (Democrat) was running for President against General Dwight D. Eisenhower. (Republican) We were both political junkies — Democrats, and, since he was still in dental school, I had to be a “cheap date.”

And so he “courted” me at free Stevenson rallies. We were very vociferous and proactive, and despondent over our loss when Eisenhower won.

Fast forward to a time when we were married and my husband was finally earning money — which was about the time he switched parties and voted for Nixon. Our “mixed marriage” survived all 57 years until his demise in 2013. We listened respectfully to each other, recognized the extent to which we were both “dug into” our (his “new”) belief system and learned from each other. We didn’t think the other was stupid, ignorant, scheming or unpatriotic. (He was a veteran of the Battle of the Bulge). Neither thought the other was a “bad” person, based on our political beliefs — or on anything else for that matter.

I will admit there were times when I entertained ideas about how to keep him away from the voting booth on election day, or tearing up his vote-by-mail ballot when I saw it in the out-mail box, but they never materialized. And so we both experienced political ups and downs as Nixon was followed by four more Republican presidents in my husband’s lifetime (not in this order): Ford, Reagan, Bush (1), Bush (2) and three Democrats: Carter, Clinton and Obama.

And I will never know if he would have become the “No Trump” Republican as did so many conservatives of our acquaintance. And I won’t even conjecture for this writing.

But I do know several “mixed marriage” couples now who are having a hard time with their relationship over this issue. I know, too, of dating couples who have either broken up over it or, if seeking a partner, have placed politics as an issue among their top criteria for a match.

What has happened to past civility and respect for our differences? For me, this is the single most frightening aspect of our current political climate. If we could only shed the idea that our disagreements make us natural enemies...

I must admit, I get stymied when I ask people from “the other side,” “Are you not outraged by the disrespect and direct defiance of law, or by inciting language or by lack of transparency?” and I discover the answer, in most cases, to be “Well, I don’t like it, but it doesn’t affect my support” followed by some version of a reference to “wonderful policies” and “what “everybody else” does. And that’s when I pull back and realize what “dug into” means. It means, “I ain’t budging” — and it comes from both sides.

So, it is true. I may not budge and they may not budge, which should not make us enemies. This is where history is such a balm. When I read about some of the most bellicose periods our country has experienced during its few hundred years of existence, I am comforted to know that we have always managed to survive in relative unity. This one may be the ultimate test.

Bucks rout Boca Raton 49-6 in District 12-8A football game

By Gary Curreri

Deerfield Beach senior quarterback Michael Pratt threw for a season-best 331 yds. and four touchdowns as the host Bucks toppled Boca Raton 49-6 in the District 12-8A opener for both teams on Friday night.

Pratt, a Tulane University commit who transferred from Boca Raton High School to Deerfield in August, made his fourth straight start and guided the Bucks to a fourth straight victory.

He has seen his touchdown totals in each game go up by one. He threw for one score in his first, then two, then three and four against his former school. He has 10 TDs on the season.

“We just have to get better every single week,” said Pratt, whose team has a bye this week before facing Spanish River. “My timing with the receivers, connection and chemistry is starting to build up. Our offensive line... I am starting to learn them and they are starting to learn me.”

Deerfield Beach (4-2, 1-0 in the district) took the opening kickoff and marched 80 yds. in three plays, capped by a 40-yd. scoring run by FSU commit Jaylan Knighton. He carried all three times in the drive for 80 yds. Knighton finished the game with seven rushes for 100 yds. and one score.

Boca Raton (2-3, 0-1) cut the lead to 7-6 on a 20-yd. scoring toss from Andrew Caverty to Ashton Gillotte with 4:02 left in the first half. The extra point attempt by Thomas Lofiago was blocked and later also had a 37-yd. field goal attempt blocked.

The score snapped a three-game shutout streak by the Bucks in their last three wins — as they defeated Blanche Ely, 46-0, Zachary (LA), 53-0 and Oak Ridge (Orlando), 42-0 — and outscored the opposition 141-0 during the span.

Deerfield Beach broke the game open in the second quarter when Pratt hit Maryland commit Deajaun McDougale for an 83-yd. catch and run for a 14-6 advantage and then 21-6 on a 64-yd. interception return by Phillip O’Brien. Deerfield Beach made it 28-6 on a 20-yd. scoring toss from Pratt to University of Miami commit Xavier Restrepo.

LHP discusses budget & more

By Carol Porter

The Lighthouse Point Commissioners had a meeting on Thursday, Sept. 26 to discuss a wide variety of issues.

Finance Director Frank DiPaolo gave a presentation to commissioners about the Fiscal Year 2019-2020 Final Millage rate, the Fiscal Year 2019-2020 Final Budget and also a resolution for adopting the General Fund Budget for Fiscal Year 2019-2020. DiPaolo noted that the Millage rate was 3.5893, which was 3.6 percent above the rollback rate of 3.4725, with the additional revenues paying for salaries, benefits and capital expenses. The budget for the city, like most municipal governments, was personnel intensive, with a lot of the funding going for personnel services.

Commissioners unanimously approved the 2019-2020 Millage Rate, and the other two items DiPaolo had requested approval.

Commissioners also quickly approved resolutions for the Final Tennis Center Special Revenue Fund, the Final Garbage and Trash Revenue Special Fund, the Debt Service and the Final Stormwater Utility Fund, with the last four items being for the 2019-2020 year.

Public Works Director Chuck Schramm asked for commission approval for considering declaring Public Works truck #409 as surplus property. He asked for this request because the cost to repair the vehicle would exceed the cost of buying a new one. Commissioners unanimously approved Schramm's request and declared the truck as surplus property.

Parks & Recreation Director Becky Lysengen asked for Commission approval for waiving the bid process and authorizing the continued use of RecDesk LLC for Recreation Management Software. Lysengen explained how the software had been used by the department since 2016 and how just renewing it would be less expensive than buying some of the newer software that was out there. Commissioners unanimously approved Lysengen's request.

Lysengen also asked for Commission approval for a resolution approving a first amendment to the agreement with Gregory B Moussette for Tennis Director Services.

BSO collects school supplies for Broward Education Foundation

Broward Sheriff's Office (BSO) was busy this summer collecting much needed school supplies for students in Broward County Title I schools. BSO donated more than $15,000 worth of school supplies to fill the shelves of Broward Education Foundation's School Supply Center. "While it is essential that our first responders have the training and tools necessary to keep our students safe, we also need to help ensure our youth have the supplies they need to succeed," said Sheriff Gregory Tony. "I'm proud of the men and women of my agency for helping our students begin a successful and safe school year."

Among the supplies in the 30 collection boxes delivered to Broward Education Foundation were pink erasers, crayons, glue sticks, composition books, colored pencils, folders, paper, pencils, pencil cases and more. Donations were collected at each BSO station in Broward County as well as during multiple back to school supply drives for the public in Pompano Beach and Dania Beach. Teachers from Title I Broward County Public Schools shop for free twice annually at Broward Education Foundation's School Supply Center so their students will have basic supplies to start and finish the school year. Nearly 70 percent of students in Broward County Public Schools are enrolled in free and reduced lunch programs. Many families must choose shelter, food and clothing over school supplies.

"Broward Education Foundation's School Supply Center equips students for success," said Broward Education Foundation's executive director Shea Ciriago. "Teachers know best what their students need to succeed in the classroom. We're very proud to partner with Broward Sheriff's Office in proactively serving our community."

The Salvation Army seeking requests for Angel Tree program

Are you a family in need or know of a parent that has fallen on hard times? The Salvation Army of Broward County is accepting family requests for participation in its Angel Tree Program, the nonprofit organization's signature holiday initiative that provides gifts to underserved children ages 10 and under.

Financially challenged parents looking to brighten their children's holidays may visit The Salvation Army of Broward County at 1445 W. Broward Blvd. in Ft. Lauderdale though Oct. 4 (or until demand is met) to receive an appointment card.

Lobby hours are Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 7 p.m., and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Each year, the Salvation

Army of Broward County delivers more than 3,200 gifts and holiday cheer to Broward County recipients. It works with several other agencies in our community to identify and qualify those families who need the most help.

Families who meet the guidelines for assistance will be notified for program participation. Their children's holiday gift wishes will become "angel" ornament tags that decorate several holiday trees strategically located throughout Broward County, as well as listed on a special virtual Angel Tree Broward Amazon.com online registry.

Donors fulfill these requests and deliver them back to Angel Tree locations or have them shipped via amazon.com. Gifts purchased are sorted and organized by volunteers and then prepared for Toy Shop distribution in December.

The Salvation Army of Broward County's Angel Tree Program is only part of the nonprofit organization's holiday efforts to help those less fortunate.

It also hosts free Thanksgiving meals, in partnership with The Cheesecake Factory, for hundreds of families with few resources and raises critical funds for feeding, shelter and social service programs for area residents through its traditional Red Kettle Bell Ringers.

For more information about consideration for the Angel Tree Program, contact Suzette Padierno at 954-524-6991 or e-mail suzette.padierno@uss.salvationarmy.org.

In May, Deerfield Beach firefighters met the ESE students of Deerfield Beach High School and taught them a bit about the fire department. Kids got to hold and spray the fire hose, climb in the truck, try on the gear and more. On Aug. 29, the firefighters came to their classroom to do a little cooking, something they plan to do monthly. They came back on Thursday, Sept. 19. These special events were coordinated by teacher Christina Fink and the fire department's Courtney Palmer.

Renee Zellweger resurrects Judy

By "Cinema" Dave
<http://cinemadave.livejournal.com>

On June 22, 1969, Mom, Dad and I were out on our Johnson & Johnson wooden boat on Cold Spring Harbor. My parents swam ashore and I stayed on the boat with a transistor radio. Between songs (likely Big Band), the news man announced that "Judy Garland died." I got so excited that I pulled the boat ashore, much to my Dad's dismay — since the tide was going out.

Being six years old, I had seen The Wizard of Oz at least twice, including once by myself on the color TV set. (The Wicked Witch of the West so scared me that I could not watch the film alone in the den the first time). Beyond portraying Dorothy Gale, Mom introduced me to Judy Garland the star of variety shows that featured singing, dancing and comedy.

Starring Renee Zellweger in the title role, the new movie Judy features the entertainer's swan song. Living off her fame, but performing at low budget night clubs with her children Lorna and Joe, Judy finishes a show, only to learn she does not have a bed to sleep in. After arguing with her fourth ex-husband Sid Luft (Rufus Sewell) about custody of the children, Judy gets a job offer to perform in London's "Talk of the Town." The money is good, but years of prescribed substance abuse have taken their toll on this vulnerable 46-year-old mother of three. Having earned a reputation as being unreliable, Judy Garland's swan song performance is an emotional roller coaster ride featuring insomnia, heart-break and the divine grace of performance.

Renee Zellweger owns Judy. Besides performing her own singing, there are moments when the ghost of Judy Garland has returned to the big screen. Likely to be Oscar-nominated, Zellweger's performance is consistent. Her final close-up is a rare audience connection that bookends the beginning of the movie.

Based on the play End of the Rainbow, this new film explains the dark side of show business. The opening shot features young Judy Garland (Darci Shaw) being told by Louie B. Mayer (Richard Cordery) that she is a plain, next-door girl that is separated by her beautiful singing voice. This scene echoes the Book of Genesis chapter in which Eve is seduced by the serpent.

Tears were shed, but the laughs are truthful, Judy is an entertaining tragedy with many life lessons. Parents who know that their children want to "run away to the circus," should take them to see Judy as a family movie some afternoon. The discussion afterward will be genuine.

Clergy Corner

By Rabbi Tzvi Dechter

The Processionary Caterpillars

Jean-Henri Fabre (1823-1915) was a French naturalist. He was the author of many works on insect life, remarkable for their vivid and minute observations and received the Nobel Prize for literature in 1910. One experiment he performed on Processionary Caterpillars struck a profound chord in my heart, allowing me to appreciate what Rosh Hashanah can mean for us today.

The Processionary Caterpillar is so named because what makes this little furry insect unique is its instinct to follow the caterpillar in front of it in a procession. Processions consist of 300 caterpillars or more, often fooling predators into thinking the caterpillar processions are snakes. It is a fascinating and charming sight to behold, as they move along nose to tail and in the likeness of a miniature train, with their eyes half-closed, searching for food.

Jean-Henri Fabre took a giant flower pot and placed an abundance of the caterpillars' favorite food (juicy green leaves) at its center, and then he enticed the lead caterpillar to start circling around the circumference of the flowerpot's rim. The other caterpillars followed suit in a tight single-file process. Fabre then succeeded in getting the lead caterpillar to connect up with the last one, creating a complete circle, which moved around the pot in a never ending procession; the head of one caterpillar touching the rear end of the caterpillar in front of it. Each caterpillar followed the one ahead, thinking that it was in search of food.

Fabre was certain that after a few circles of the pot, the caterpillars would discover their predicament or tire of their endless progression and veer in another direction. But they continued their circle. Fabre thought that after a day or two, growing hungry and tired, one of them will break out of the circle and head for the food. But, quite unbelievably, seven days and nights passed and not one of them would break the pattern to fetch the food in the center of the pot, less than six inches away.

The end of the story? Each one of the caterpillars died of exhaustion and starvation.

Not one of the caterpillars stepped out of line. So they all died.

Human Caterpillars

Is it not true that so many of us humans, in our own way, suffer from similar patterns? How many of us often fall into their very pattern of following the masses at the expense of our own food laying right there in middle of the flowerpot? Deep in our hearts we often know that we should or should not be doing something or saying something. But we just fall into the "herd mentality" trap. We know that what we have been doing for so many years is really not nourishing us, but we can't get ourself to leave the cursed circle. We'd rather die than step out of line.

We've all seen footage of people breaking out into a stampede on Black Friday and trampling others at Target. Viewers often make fun of these groups, wondering how so many customers could be so stupid. But the crowds aren't really thousands of individuals making dumb decisions. The crowds are just crowds; that's what crowds do.

We are programmed to follow herds, explained superstar Israeli economist Dan Ariely in his new book, Dollars and Sense, and businesses make use of this mentality. Have you ever been stuck waiting with a group outside a music venue when the spacious building could easily let you all in? They might be keeping you there to get passersby to come to the show.

We assume that, if other people are doing something, then it's a good idea.

"That's what we are designed to do," Ariely says "It's not something we are aware of."

This tendency can be dangerous. When fires break out in crowded movie theaters, everyone often runs to the same door and gets stuck in a bottleneck, even when there are two other side doors going unused. It's very hard to say, 'Everyone's running in that direction. Let me sit here and think and look carefully around.'

Like wildebeests on the Serengeti running from lions, our species depends on a tendency for many people to act like one big animal.

Another driver to meet the city's energy-efficiency goals is the installation of solar photovoltaic panels on several buildings to generate energy from renewable sources and increase the city's energy resiliency.

When asked where the money will come from for the initial investment in the project, Sustainability Coordinator Hillary Reynolds explained, "The initial cost for the project is coming from a tax-exempt lease purchase agreement from TD Bank, which was approved at the Aug. 6 and Aug. 20 commission meetings. We will utilize the $15 million of guaranteed savings to pay that back. The savings is generated through efficiency upgrades in the areas of energy, water, and operations throughout city facilities."

Pratt connected with Deajoun McDougle two more times in the third quarter from 51 yds. and 60 yds. for a 42-6 lead. It was his 10th scoring touchdown pass in four games. McDougle had 226 yds. receiving on five catches and three TDs.

Back-up quarterback Marquise Pierre hit Jamarion McDougle on a 45-yd. TD score in the fourth for a 49-6 Bucks lead. It marked just the fifth time in Deerfield Beach history where they have scored 40 or more points in four straight games.

Pratt missed the first two games of the season, losses to Carol City, 24-12, and St. John's (Washington, D.C.), 52-20, with a groin injury. Pratt threw for 1,208 yds. and 12 TDs at Boca Raton last season. He also ran for 447 yds. and three scores for the Bobcats.

Deerfield Beach coach Jevon Glenn said Pratt handled the week going against his former teammates well.

"He has a steadiness about him and is a little ahead of his time," Glenn said. "To be quite honest, if he plays the first two games, we would be undefeated and top-10 in the country right now."

Last season, Deerfield Beach fell in the state semifinals of the Class 8A tournament as they lost 49-21 to the eventual state champion, Miami Columbus, and finished 12-2. Deerfield lost in the regional quarterfinal the season before and lost in the state semifinals in 2016 to the eventual state champion, Southridge, 26-7 in 2016.

"it's been a great opportunity to learn a few new things," Pratt added. "I have to make better reads and work on timing."

This same mental tendency helps us build skyscrapers together and distribute food around the world. It just also means we can be indiscriminate about which groups we join. If you're in a group, your mind isn't always your own.

Yogi Berra

The legendary baseball player, Yogi Berra, who died in Sep. 2015, was once asked by his wife: "Yogi: you were born in Missouri, you live in New Jersey, and you played with the New York Yankees. So when you die, where should I bury you?"

Yogi replied: "Surprise me!"

Rosh Hashanah & Yom Kippur says: Surprise yourself. Step out of line! This year, give yourself permission to cross the imaginary or real lines that hold you hostage. Transcend the mold.

Surprise yourself. Don't be predictable. Do it differently. People put all types of limits on themselves, inspired by fear and trauma and status quo. This year — break out.

"A little boy over there got a nice Trigger fish. And one little girl got her very first fish, a nice sized Blue Runner. One caught a Flute," Ganz enthused.

Vice Mayor Todd Drosky and Commissioner Michael Hudak also attended, to support the event and the community as a whole.

Carson, 3, was delighted with a Blue Runner that was just reeled in with the help of Mike Cleary of Fish Angler (www.FishAngler.com).

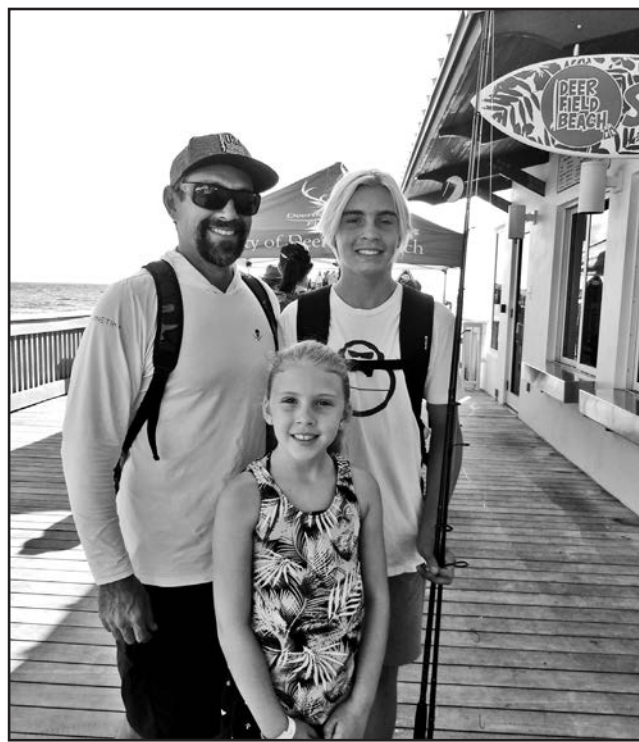

"He's already a fisherman. He got it from his daddy," said Cleary.

FishAngler was a title sponsor, as were Chick-Fil-A and JM Family. Another sponsor was CHAOS Serious Fishing Equipment of Pompano Beach, which makes custom fishing rods. Ty, wearing a company T-shirt, assisted Chantini, 7, with his fishing rod.

More than 260 people pre-registered the day of the event for the 4th Annual Jr. Anglers Day — which was also accessible by shuttle from Oveta McKeithen Recreation Center.

The event was rescheduled from Saturday, Sept. 21, due to high winds that day.

Schramm asked for commission approval for the second reading of an ordinance approving a 30-year franchise with Broward County for water services. Before approving the staff's request, commissioners had a discussion about the possibility of residents using reuse water as well. Commissioners unanimously approved staff's request.

Public Works Director Chuck Schramm asked for Commission approval for a resolution approving an agreement with Bank of America for purchasing cards for vendor payments. Schramm explained how having a card on-hand was a good idea, as buying and leasing things was becoming more and more digital, and how it was easier to pay for things with credit cards. He also noted that this way of paying for things did not cost the city any extra. Commissioners unanimously approved Schramm's request.

Commissioners then reviewed a resolution amending benefits for Department Directors and for Exempt Employees, which would include sick leave buyout, flex spending and other benefits. The resolution was approved unanimously five to zero. Following this resolution, commissioners reviewed a resolution which would renew the contract the city had with Goren, Cherof, Dody and Ezrol for another year.

Commission Vice President Michael Long said that Cirullo had done a wonderful job with the city and that everyone was pleased with his work. Commissioners unanimously approved staff's request to extend Cirullo's contract for another year.

At the end of the meeting, Commissioners had some comments. Commissioner Jason Joffe said that one of the local schools was having a Student Government Election, and a number of fine young people were running for office. He praised all the youngsters for running.

Mayor Glenn Troast said he wanted to thank the members of the Fire Department who were on-hand to help his wife, who had taken sick suddenly but, due to their swift action, had recovered.

Troast also raised some issues about some dumping that had been taking place within the city that was starting to show some encroachments on the city's roads. He asked staff and the city's waste hauler to look into the problems.
