

Beer production 2016

500 years of the German Purity law

On April 23, 1516, Bavarian co-rulers Duke Wilhelm IV and Ludwig X issued a decree in Ingolstadt implementing the world's oldest food regulation which is still in force to this day. The "Reinheitsgebot" is known the world over and guarantees the quality of German beer.

Automation, digitalization and the German Purity Law - how do all of these fit together? They all have something to do with creating lasting value and premium quality: They safeguard the quality of the brewing process. Modern technology from Siemens helps support concrete implementation in line with the German saying: Mix water with malt and hops to make a few nobler drops!

