

Our history in Poland

From the first electric telegraph line to a global technology powerhouse

1853

A telegraph line is built from Warsaw to the Prussian border; a construction office is set up in Warsaw

1867

Construction of the Indo-European telegraph line, which crosses Poland, is commenced

1879

The Kraft engineering office in Warsaw becomes Siemens & Halske's (S&H) first agent in Poland

1896

A Technical Bureau is founded in Warsaw

1908

The Warsaw branch becomes the Technical Bureau of Russische Elektrotechnische Werke S&H

1912

The stock cooperation "Polnische Elektrotechnische Werke Siemens" (PEW) is founded

1919

The Danziger Siemens-Gesellschaft mbH is founded

1923

The railway signaling company C. Fiebrandt GmbH, Bromberg, is acquired

1929

A contract is signed with the state telephone and radio company in Warsaw for the manufacture of counters

1950–1958

Cooperation agreement is signed between S&H, Siemens-Schuckertwerke (SSW) and the sales agency Pawel Pawlowski, Warsaw

1961–1963

An agency agreement is signed between SSW/S&H and the firm Transactor, Warsaw

1973

Transactor agency offices are opened to represent Siemens in Warsaw, Gdańsk and Katowice

Our history in Poland

1991

The Polish company Siemens Sp. z o.o. is founded with headquarters in Warsaw

2002

The first development center for cordless telephones outside Germany is established in Wroclaw

2006

Siemens wins a contract from Mittal Steel Poland for the turnkey construction of one of Europe's biggest steel rolling mills

2006

The Siemens Artistic Prize is established to support Polish graduates from the Warsaw Academy of Fine Arts

2011

Warsaw's metro operator, Metro Warszawskie Sp. z o.o., orders 35 Inspiro metro trains with a Siemens-consortium making this the biggest order ever for Siemens in Poland

2013

Siemens wins the contract to build a turnkey combined heat and power plant in Gorzow, Poland